Woman who stabbed man is handed a life sentence

Court told defendant demanded money from victim during attack

By James Gregory

A WOMAN, believed to be from Harlow, who repeatedly stabbed a man and cut his throat has been given a life sentence.

Kelly Gentry, 47, will serve a minimum of six years behind bars for stabbing her victim multiple times, and demanding that he gave her money so she could leave the area.

On the evening of June 23, 2017, Gentry went to the home of her victim, a Mr Marlborough, in Wellesley Road, Clacton, and the pair began drinking together.

After a while, Gentry became aggressive, demanding money and threatening the victim with a

She stabbed Mr Marlborough in his stomach before taking money and cards from his wallet.

Gentry then stabbed him in his shoulder and chest before slashing his throat after he tried to flee the room.

Alerted

Mr Marlborough passed out but came to at around 5.30am when he alerted a neighbour who called the emergency services.

Gentry, believed to be from Harlow but of no fixed address, was arrested on July 1 and charged with attempted murder the following day.

She denied the charge at Chelmsford Crown Court.

She was cleared by jurors of attempted murder on Monday, December 11 but they unanimously found her guilty of an alternate GBH with intent charge which she was sentenced for

After the conclusion of her trial, Judge Morgan had warned her that because of her previous conviction for a similar offence, she could face a life sentence.

Investigating officer, Detective Sergeant Phil Terry from Clacton CID, said: "This was a horrific attack which left the victim seriously hurt.

"Fortunately his iniuries weren't life-threatening but the reality is Gentry had tried to cause him harm and the attack could've been a lot worse

"Gentry is a dangerous woman who was willing to really hurt someone in order to steal from him and prevent him telling the

"I am pleased she is off the streets and is no longer able to pose a threat to the victim or anyone else.

"I want to praise the victim's bravery throughout the investigation and court process

"I hope this sentence provides some solace to him.

Restaurants closed due to shortage of chicken

ONE of Britain's most beloved fast food outlets is still recovering from a blunder which saw most of its restaurants closed across the nation.

Nearly every KFC in the country was forced to close their doors over the weekend after tunning out of ingredients – including chicken. In Harlow the KFC branch at Harlow Retail Park in Edinburgh Way was able to open on Sunday, February 18, but the branch in the Staple Tye Shopping Centre stayed closed on Sunday night. Essex branches of the international brand were affected, with the closures being put down to a problem with stock being delivered. The embarrassing gaffe saw outraged customers take to social media to vent their frustration at not being able to wrap their lips around KFC's signature dishes.

Response

In response to her query, a spokesman for KFC promised "The Colonel is working hard to get things fixed".

A spokesman for KFC said the colossal error came down to teething problems with the company's new delivery partner.

"We deliver fresh chicken to our restaurants, but we're having a few hiccups with our delivery system at the moment,' he said.

"We're really sorry for any inconvenience, and we're working to have all our restaurants back up and running as soon as we can!" Almost every single KFC in the county was closed to the public over the weekend, with the majority not open for business on Monday.

A statement, published on the KFC website, detailed which restaurants had manage to begin serving the public again.

The company reiterated its position that "teething problems" with their new delivery partner were the cause of the discreditable error but that supplying fresh chicken to 900 restaurants is "pretty complex"

FREE for any item under £100, higher priced items just £10 when booked online. Excludes pets, motors and trade.

Cars seriously damaged after police pursuit through town

Crash on A414 followed vehicle failing to stop for officers having left the M11

iously damaged.

Both a dark coloured and white
Ford were left crumpled in the collision that closed off the A414 in Church Langley, Harlow on Sunday (February 18).

Both sets of airbags were deployed and foam was poured on a fuel spillage from the white car, which has been left with serious front end damage.
A police car also suffered some minor damage.

Roundabout

It is not clear which car was being pursued by Essex Police traffic officers when the crash happened at 11am at the Church Langley roundabout.

There were no serious injuries but the exit road from Church Langley towards the M11 was closed for about 90 minutes.

A police spokesman said: "We are currently at the scene of a collision in Church Langley Way, Church Langley, after a car collided with other vehicles at 11am today (Sunday, February 18). "The car had failed to stop for

Driver is arrested

A DRIVER was arrested as police found a knife, drugs and money in his car after a crash shut the M11 at the weekend.

The exit slip road on the southbound carriagway was closed at the junction with the M25 on Sunday, (February 18) after a van and car collided and one of the vehicles caught fire, with a diversion put in place to keep drivers away from the scene.

PC Emily Cross, who is a probationary police constable in Loughton, shared a number of images on Twitter showing the serious damage to one of the vehicles involved

Also drugs, a knife and a large quantity of cash that the male driver was allegedly found in possession of.

She also confirmed that the man who was wanted for assault, has been further arrested for possession with intent to supply, driving under the influence of drugs and theft of a vehicle.

The long, long wait goes on for suspect in custody

British record holder has still not been to the toilet after 35 days

By Hannah Kane

A MAN suspected of being a drug dealer has now gone 35 days in police custody as police continue to wait for him to poo out the drugs he allegedly swallowed. Lamarr Chambers, 24, was arrested by police on Wednesday, January 17, for failing to stop in Ladyshot, Harlow, along with intent to supply class A drugs. He has been held in custody since his arrest as the police wait until he poos out the drugs he is believed to have swallowed.

On Monday (February 19), Chambers appeared at Chelms-19) ford Magistrates' Court as police applied for another section 152 order, meaning he would remain in custody for a further five days.

Speaking on behalf of the Crown, Kathy Wilson QC said:
"Mr Chambers has not properly been to the toilet for some 33 days You have to consider whether or not he is not taking on enough food in order to frustrate the seizing of police evidence.

"He is being more than adequately looked after by Essex Police. He has been offered fluids and food. His lights are dimmed at night and he is being reviewed every 24 hours. If he requests to go to the hospital he is taken there. There is reference to him passing

"It is in fact questionable as to whether any faecal matter was collected.

"He did wipe his bottom and there was a stain on the toilet paper. Had any amount of faecal matter been passed, we would not be in this position today."

On February 10, after 24 days,
Chambers broke the British record for spending the most days in custody while police wait for him to poo.

However, he has been taken to facilities at Stansted Airport in an attempt to defecate.

Defending, Andrew Horsall QC

said: "There was an attempt to pass a stool at Stansted Airport.

"The police were in the same room with their backs turned.

"However, nothing happened." Police have gathered evidence to suggest Chambers has in fact swallowed the drugs.

Chambers has been remanded in police custody until Friday, February 23, where he will appear once again in Chelmsford Magis-

Restaurant shortlisted for kebab accolade

A HARLOW restaurant has been shortlisted for an accolade in the British Kebab Awards.

Merlin Bar and Restaurant is in the running to be crowned Best Newcomer in London/ Outside London.

Eight other eateries are vying for the crown, including Pircio, at Drill Hall in the Market Square, Bishop's Stortford. The awards are made up of a series of categories including Just East best delivery, customer satisfaction, best value, fine dining, kebab van of the year best newcomer, supplier, and chef of the year.

There are also regional categories for best takeaway, kebab house and restaurant.

Dedication

The British Kebab Awards were set up six years ago to recognise the dedication of local kebab takeaways and restaurant owners around the country.

These awards are meant to be a thank you for those 'unsung heroes' who work in kebab businesses across the country. the awards website states.

They are run in association with Just Eat and feature 16 different categories ranging from regional and nationwide awards. The winners will get their award presented to them at an awards ceremony.

Food for thought: Suspected drug dealer's diet

A SUSPECTED drug dealer who has gone 35 days without having a poo has been surviving on a diet of Frosties cereal bars, fruit and his mum's fish, a court heard.

Lemarr Chambers, 24, was arrested by police on January 17 for failing to stop in Ladyshot, Harlow.

He was also arrested for intent to supply Class A drugs and it is alleged he has swallowed some of the drugs in

On Saturday, February 10, Chambers broke the British record for spending the most days in police custody.

Operation Raptor West, which is Essex Police's gang and urban street crime unit for Harlow, Epping Forest, Brentwood and the Thurrock districts, had been updating the public through Twitter on the situation using the hashtag #poowatch.

Following reports that Chambers had been refusing to eat, it was revealed in court what the suspect had been consuming from inside his

After his initial arrest, he had been eating Frosties cereal bars and, as time went on, he would eat up to eight a day.

However, since his last court appearance, he has now swapped his diet to that of fruit and vegetables.

It was also revealed that the suspect had eaten fish made by his mother prior to his appearance before magistrates.

Trish Macnair of the Primary Care Society for Gastroenterology, said: "There's only so long you can hang on. "You won't get a devastating build-up of toxins that can poison the body in such a short space of time.

"You're just going to get a lot of uncomfortable stretching of intestinal tubes.'

57-year-old evicted from his caravan is offered new home

Kind-hearted property company offers a small plot of land for John to live on

By Piers Meyler

A MAN left homeless as temperatures dropped well below freez-ing after his caravan was taken away by Essex County Council has been rehomed thanks to a generous offer from a Harlow property company.

John Jones, 57, lived with his dogs in the Fern Hill area of Harlow before his caravan was seized, making him and his two dogs homeless as temperatures fell to minus 2 in some of the coldest nights of the year.

But Harlow-based business KP Property Development has now offered a small plot of land for Mr Jones to site another caravan – believed to have been donated by a kind-hearted well-wisher.

Robin Pitt, from the company. said: "We read the story and were touched by what we read.

"We had a plot of land which wasn't in use and offered a place to live for a while."

A picture of the 57-year old surfaced online showing the man sobbing on an empty site along with his two dogs after the council removed his caravan on Friday February 9.

Mr Pitt said: "A member of the public we believe has lent him a caravan to live in.

Basically after I read the story went down there to find him and went from there."
In the wake of the distressing images, an online petition was set up to try and get Mr Jones his caravan back.

Involvement

Soon after being evicted, a generous homeowner had offered Mr Jones a sofa in her home for him to stay on, while other locals gave him food money and blankets and another looked after his dogs.

The council previously denied having any involvement with the removal of the caravan.

An Essex County Council spokesman had said: "We have no record of removing a caravan from land near Commonside Road in Harlow and having heard about it we are concerned about the welfare of John Jones and will be liaising with local agencies to see what help can be offered."

But the council has since admitted removing Mr Jones' caravan and issued a court order.

In an updated statement, Essex County Council admitted: "We

John Jones, 57, was pictured crying along with his two dogs posted notices regarding an illegal encampment on the roadside in Fernhill Lane, Harlow, after we received several complaints from residents.

"We had previously offered Mr Jones a pitch at the local Essex Countywide Traveller Unit cara-van site nearby, which he declined. Last month we visited him to conduct welfare and human rights checks.

"In these cases, a court summons is a last resort.

"When Mr Jones did not attend his court hearing, we gave him an additional 24 hours to respond and then a further 48 hours to leave the site.

"When this time elapsed, his caravan was placed into secure storage and he was given the details of Harlow Council's housing team for ongoing help and support. "We understand Harlow Council has been in touch with Mr

Jones to offer housing support and our Homelessness Mentors scheme has also been contacted to offer help to Mr Jones.

The online petition now has more than 39,000 signatures with residents calling on the council to help Mr Jones during the cold

Inquiries

A Harlow Council spokesman said: "We are aware of local people's concerns about the welfare of a man who has been living in a caravan on land in Harlow. These concerns are being shared on social media and through an online petition.

"We have not removed or had any involvement in the removal of his carayan

"The land is owned by Essex County Council.

"We are making inquiries with them about what has happened to the caravan and if any support is being provided to the gentleman.

"We work with local organisa-tions to connect anyone who is homeless with local services and

"This includes us providing housing support and advice to those who need and want help."

80s music to rock historic Audley End

A MUSIC festival will transport the historic Audley End House back to the 1980s with performances from Jason Donovan, Midge Ure and plenty more.

The huge outdoor show Here and Now - Back to the 80s will bring back to back performances from 1980s icons to the country house in Saffron Walden on Friday, July 13.

Jason Donovan, Midge Ure, Five Star, Hot Chocolate, Altered Images, T'Pau and Toyah Willcox will all play their hits during this extravaganza of 80s pop music.

Giles Cooper, the promoter of the Heritage Live Concert Series at Audley End, said: "We are delighted to be working with English Heritage in resurrecting the summer concerts at Audley End this coming July and the entire GCE Live team is looking forward to bringing a mix of classical music with mainstream pop to the property.

Range

"The fantastic range of artists on the bill for Here And Now – Back to the 80s makes this a very rare and special concert for Audley End."
Since 2001 the Here and Now show has been played to hundreds of thousands of fans across the country – with the organisers claiming it to be 'the most successful high profile 80s live show in the world'.

Tours have included performances in Australia,

The Far East, Japan and across Europe.

Jason Donovan rocketed to fame in Australian soap Neighbours, before embarking on a pop career that led to chart-topping hits worldwide such as Too Many Broken Hearts, Sealed With a Kiss, and his duet with his former Neighbours co-star Kylie Minogue on Especially for You. Midge Ure has received Ivor Novello and Grammy Midge Ure has received Ivor Novello and Grammy Awards, as well as a flotilla of gold and platinum records for his work in bands such as Thin Lizzy, Ultravox, Visage, and of course Band Aid.

He regularly topped the charts in the 80s, be it with Visage (Fade to Grey, Mind of a Toy), Ultravox (Vienna, Dancing With Tears In My Eyes, Love's Great Adventure) or under his own name (No Poemets If Wee) Regrets, If I Was).

With their dynamic sound and dance routines

Five Star made a sizeable mark on both the UK and US charts in the 80s.

The Pearson siblings became the youngest group ever to top the British charts, beating out a record held by Michael Jackson and scored a total of six top ten singles with their Number 1 album Silk & Steel including hits such as System Addict, Rain or Shine and Find The Time and Find The Time.

Hot Chocolate's disco era pop saw them have a hit single every year between 1970 and 1984, with tracks such as It Started With a Kiss, So Win Again and probably their most well know hit You Sexy Thing, which became the only song to make the British top ten in the 1970s, 1980s, and 1990s.

Tickets go on general sale at 9am tomorrow (Friday, February 23).

VIP options are also available for the show.

Is spring around the corner? Here's the ch-chilling truth...

Forecasters warn of cold snap that is expected to last weeks rather than days

By James Gregory

WITH spring on the horizon, you might be forgiven for thinking about sunnier and warmer days expected in the months ahead.
But that could be a lot further down the line, as forecasters in Essex say snow could fall across the county next week.

The Essex Weather Centre has said that cold weather could be hitting the county by this Sunday (February 25) with it potentially lasting for up to three to four

Forecaster

Tom Defty, forecaster at the Essex Weather Centre, said: "March 1 is technically spring, but it looks like we will see cold weather from Sunday that could possibly last three to four weeks.

"The repercussions of this are slightly greater than what we've seen in recent years

"It could snow from Monday, February 26."

With the cold front expected to last for weeks, Tom has warned Essex motorists to take extra care on the roads.

"The main concern is the duration," Tom added.

"We are talking weeks rather than a couple of days.

"It is going to have a big impact on everyday life – we all know the impact of snow on trains and

Forecasters say there is a 90 per cent chance of a severe cold spell in the coming weeks, when temperatures could plummet to a staggering -10 degrees Celsius

Tom added: "It could get as low as -10 at night time but also below pretty severe.

"There could also be a wind

Man died in hospital after contracting sepsis

A 62-YEAR-OLD man from Harlow died in hospital after contracting sepsis, an inquest has heard

Kevin Doyle, who had a history of ill health including thrombotic complications and heart disease, was admitted to the Princess Alexandra Hospital in Harlow in October.

However, he soon developed complications in his treatment and was transferred to a hospital in Camden,

Sadly he passed away on December 8 last year. A preliminary cause of death listed sepsis as well as his other ailments as the reason behind his passing.

Infection

Sepsis is a life-threatening condition that arises when the body's response to infection causes it to damage its own tissues and organs.

Common symptoms include fever, increased heart rate, increased breathing rate and confusion. Treating sepsis in hospitals has recently become a topic that has been brought to the nation's attention in the last few months

A BBC panorama programme highlighted how a number of NHS trusts across the country had failed to adequately spot the signs of sepsis in enough time to

Two days have been set aside for the full inquest into the death of Mr Doyle - June 12 and 13. At a preliminary inquest hearing on Friday (February 16), Senior Coroner for Essex Caroline Beasley-Murray extended an invitation to the full inquest hearing to Mr Doyle's family. Mrs Beasley-Murray has also requested information from the relevant NHS trust over whether a serious

F.O.I. REVELATIONS: Document shows what happened during music event

12 things no one wanted you to know about last V Festival reports of a murder suspect in the arena and a dramatic decline in ticket sales are just two of the shocking revelations highlighted in an internal V Festival docu-ment obtained by the Essex Chronicle.

The document, between Essex Police, Chelmsford City Council and V Festival organisers, also shows a concerning drop in the ages of people who had been taken ill from drugs – most markedly a new craze involving Ketamine – to as low as 15 years of agee.
The minutes from the safety advisory group, responsible for overseeing the last V Festival at Hylands Park last year, also reveal how even with his megastar status Jay Z, who headlined on Sunday, was not allowed to land his helicopter at the site.

As speculation grows over the future of a summer music festival in Hylands Park, the Chronicle has been delving into the details over what might have triggered the decision by Virgin to pull out of the two-day festival.

A Freedom of Information request to Chelmsford City Council for the full meeting notes from its Safety Advisory Group (SAG) has revealed a worrying catalogue of drugs, assaults and ser ious misgivings over the quality of security after a man wanted for murder was allegedly sighted among thousands of revellers.

The FOI has also uncovered criminal incidents at the festival including a sexual assault and an attack with an hammer.

Here are the 12 most shocking things we learnt from the documents:

BRADLEY BLUNDELL 'SEEN PARTYING NEAR THE MAIN STAGE'

Bradley Blundell was reportedly seen by a festival-goer
One of the county's most wanted fugitives was allegedly seen partying with thousands as P!nk headlined the main stage at the festival in Hylands Park just two weeks after it is claimed he shot dead popular Chelmsford bodybuilder John Pordage The 18-year-old allegedly fired the gun that delivered the fatal wound which killed the 34-year old electrician from Galleywood. on August 5 last year, but has evaded capture ever since. A reward of up to £10,000 is being offered to anyone providing information that leads to his arrest. According to the briefing note, setting out what had been reported overnight between Saturday and Sunday morning (August 19-20) there was frustration among Essex Police officers that security had not comprehended the seriousness of the information that had been passed to them.

It said a member of the licensing authority at Chelmsford City Council had reported that Essex Police were unhappy with the attitude of on-site security "after a member of the public reported that Bradley Blundell has been seen in the arena and he was wanted for murder.

"Apparently security told the person to report the issue direct to Essex Police," it said.

YOUNG WOMEN USED CAMPSITE AS A BASE TO PERFORM SEXUAL FAVOURS FOR DRUGS

The 2017 festival at Hylands Park was the first time organisers had provided luxury camping accommodation at the site where about 26,000 had been camping over the two-day event, headlined by and Jay-Z

However, it has now been revealed that concerns over women performing sex acts for drugs had been so great that security had been redeployed to clamp down on any illicit behaviour across the whole camping site.

"She had also received information that young women were performing sexual favours for drugs in the campsite and had sent staff from the village to patrol the campsite in a bid to monitor this," the briefing note

CHILDREN AS YOUNG AS 15 WERE GETTING HIGH ON A MIX OF HORSE

TRANQUILLISERS PATROLS AND PRESCRIPTION ANXIETY DRUGS

V Festival revellers as young as 15 were getting high on a potentially fatal mix of horse tranquillisers, ecstasy and strong medication available only on prescription.

on prescription.
Festival welfare staff said they were concerned at the sudden use of 'Ket-bombs' – involving taking ketamine or MDMA in a dribt cond then resident. drink and then using a prescription drug for anxiety -Xanax – to bring themselves back up again. Staff added they were concerned that those seeking help after taking drugs or alcohol were much younger than in previous years

■ TICKET SALES HAD PLUMMETED

Figures in the document, obtained through a Freedom of Information request, revealed a staggering 25 per cent drop in ticket sales compared to the previous year.

In 2016 there were 18,000 day tickets sold for Saturday, 12,000 for Sunday and 13,000 weekend tickets as well as 53,000 camping tickets, bringing a total of 96,000. However there were just 26,000 campers, compared to 53,000 in 2016 with 21,000 day tickets sold for Saturday, 16,500 day tickets for Sunday and 8,000 weekend tickets – a total of 71,000.

Festival Republic submitted a request for special police services (SPS) in the region of £100,000 compared to an SPS budget of £138,000 for 2016.

However agreement with the police could not be reached on the level of SPS. Therefore the police refused to provide any SPS for 2017, according to the

WOMAN SEXUALLY ASSAULTED IN TENT

According to the briefing notes, a woman had taken a man to her tent where she was then sexually assaulted

She had lost her phone but had managed to contact her mother who came to pick her up.

When security received this information and contacted the police, the girl was already in the police station reporting the assault.

However no scene for the assault, which happened between Saturday night and Sunday morning, was established.

Essex Police has been contacted for comment.

IAY-Z WAS TŎLD TO PARK HIS £18M HELICOPTER IN A LOCAL'S GARDEN

JAY-Z had requested to leave the V site via helicopter – a Sikorsky S-92 worth £18 million.

But the hip-hop superstar was told he would not be allowed. Even at 11pm on Sunday when JAY-Z finished his set it would have been difficult to transport him to nearby farm land.

The plan was for the rapper to land on St Patrick Day's land at 7pm and then land the helicopter on the Hylands Park site at about 10.50pm for an 11pm

However, due to only one fire unit being allocated to helicopter landings, it would have meant the helicopter would have needed to land there if it was going to take off from there.

It was later confirmed that he would not be able to land in the park as it was too large to safely land at a required distance from the crowd.

The Sikorsky S-92 is one of the most expensive commercial helicopters, boasting an on-board bathroom and luxury fixtures and furnishings.

CONCERNS OVER THE WATER SUPPLY

There were fears there may not have been enough water for V Festival revellers after a drop in levels at a nearby reservoir.

By November 2016, the reservoir level was critically low, causing Essex and Suffolk Water to worry there would not be enough supplies for the festival. However, this was later

resolved after water was

SYSTEM TO CALL POLICE DID NOT WORK PROPERLY

An issue arose with calling into 101 for police response, leading to delays in information exchange and police response.

A MAN WAS ATTACKED WITH A HAMMER

A man was attacked with a hammer in an early morning brawl between two groups of campers.

The incident happened in the campsite at 5am on Monday, August 21, after the two groups

■ SOME FESTIVAL STAFF WERE NOT VETTED

Essex Police advised that they had received a total of 740 vetting requests in the month before the festival

The briefing note, dated July 14, revealed Essex Police's frustration with the organisers who had submitted 740 requests for vetting leaving them with insufficient time to carry out the work.

It was then decided that those with security industry authority badges would not be vetted.
Essex Police added that the vetting procedure did not work and requested that a policy be put in place for vetting for future

■ PYROTECHNIC DEVICE SET THE STAGE ALIGHT

A small fire on Stage 1 was caused by burlap igniting from a pyrotechnic.

The fire was dealt with quickly and similar pyrotechnics were not used.

Behind bars: Jailed through Raptor arrests

by Essex Police in May 2014 with the goal of disrupting and dis-mantling any gangs who travel to Essex planning to deal drugs and cause violence.

In the first two-and-a-half years of the operation, teams in the north, south and west local policing areas made more than 1,300 arrests and seized in excess of £172,000 cash.

Looking at 2017, police arrested over 100 people and secure well over 100 years in custodial sentences for offences including possessing drugs, possession with intent to supply and being con-cerned in the supply of heroin, cocaine, crack cocaine, cannabis and amphetamine.

Here are the faces of all the criminals connected to the Harlow area, who were jailed during 2017 as part of the operation:

■ DAVID JOSEPH

Jailed for 4 years Joseph was sentenced to four years after he exploited a vulnerable man by using his home as a base to ply drugs. Officers from the Harlow Community Policing and Operation Raptor West teams visited a property in Rundells, Harlow in July 2016 with concerns for the welfare of the man living at the address.

During a four-day trial, Chelmsford Crown Court heard the door to the property was opened by 25-year-old Joseph, who was one of several gang members who had taken over control of the man's property and was using it as a drugs base.

Joseph, of Brandon Street,

South London, was searched by officers and found in possession of cannabis and £210 cash, before a further search of the flat revealed 26 rocks of heroin and crack cocaine, along with another

JOMARDI MCPHERSON

Jailed for 3 years and 7 months On November 16, 2016, police officers attempted to question Jomardi McPherson but he ran off, before later being caught in Bush Fair, Harlow.

He was found in possession of 1.7 grams of heroin and one gram of cocaine and cannabis. McPherson, 22, of Applewood Drive, Plaistow, appeared at Chelmsford Crown Court for sentencing on Thursday, February 16.

He received two years and one month in prison for two counts of possession with intent to supply Class A drugs and one count of possession with intent to supply Class B drugs.

LINUS ITOYA

Jailed for 3 years

Chelmsford Crown Court heard Itoya, 23, of no fixed abode, was seen acting suspiciously in the car park of the Water Gardens shopping centre in Harlow on Thursday, December 15, 2016. He got into a vehicle, which was subsequently stor searched by officers. stopped and

He was taken to custody at Har-low police station, where a strip search revealed he had concealed 19 rocks of crack cocaine and heroin in his bottom. He was also found with £300 cash that was believed to be from drug sales.

He admitted two counts of pos sessing a Class A drug with intent to supply and was jailed for three

AMIR MOSTOFI AND GLEN ELAMO

Jailed for a combined total of more than 6 years

Officers from the West Operation Raptor team were on patrol in the Town Park area of Harlow on October 4, 2016, when they received reports that drug dealers had gathered and a suspected deal was about to take place.

The police went to the area and saw a group of what was believed to be drug users approaching a vehicle.

The driver of the car was 26year-old Mostofi, who panicked and dropped an object in his lap and attempted to drive the car away while his passenger, 20-yearold Elamo, tried to escape on foot. They were stopped and searched by officers, where wraps and rocks of the Class A drugs heroin and cocaine were found, as well as mobile phones and more than £200 in cash.

Both men were arrested and charged with one count of possession of a Class A drug with intent to supply.

Elamo, of Station Road, East London, and Mostofi, of Downing Court, North London, admitted the charges. Elamo was jailed for three years and six months while Mostofi was handed a three-year prison sentence.

BANA HABTEGIORGIS

Jailed for 2 years and 6 months Bana Habtegiorgis, 27, of Longfield, Harlow, was sentenced after admitted possessing Class A drugs with intent to supply when appeared at Chelmsford Crown Court.

The court heard officers searched the flat at Longfield, Harlow on May 25, 2016. Several people, including Habtegiorgis,

TO ARRANGE A TEST DRIVE TODAY

were found inside the home. They were all searched and when Habtegiorgis was moved from the sofa where she was sitting, officers found a parcel which contained 44 wraps of crack cocaine and 28 wraps of heroin. She was arrested and declined to make any comment during her subsequent police interview. She was charged and admitted supplying Class A drugs and was given a 30-month jail term.

DESIRE JOHNSON

Jailed for 2 years and 6 months On Friday, February 17, 2017, officers on patrol in the Pittmans Field area of Harlow spotted 23-year-old Johnson with a group of people, including known drug noticing the After officers, Johnson left the group and began walking away. She was stopped and questioned by the officers, during which she admitted supplying drugs to the group She was arrested and taken to a

■ MOHAMMED REHMAN

Jailed for 3 years and 3 months Two drug dealers were sentenced after being caught red-handed by officers from the West Operation Raptor team.

Officers were patrolling the Maddow Road area of Harlow on March 7, 2016, when they spotted a group of known drug users near to a silver Peugeot.

Moments later, Mohammed Rehman, 26, and Rhys Regisford, 25, were seen getting out of the car.

Officers approached the two men to search them and they tried to flee. During the chase, Regisford threw a white plastic ball into the air which contained 45 rocks of crack cocaine and one gram of heroin.

The pair were arrested and Rehman was also found to be in possession of cannabis.

Regisford, of Hyde Close, East London, was charged and pleaded guilty to two counts of possessing a Class A drug with intent to supply. He was given a two-year suspended jail sentence.

Rehman, of Richmond Street, East London, was charged and pleaded guilty to two count of possessing a Class A drug with intent to supply and possessing cannabis. He was jailed for three years and three months.

AJAUN RILEY AND ISHMAIL KELLY

Jailed for a combined 6 years and 2 months Chelmsford Crown Court heard officers were patrolling the Longfields area of Harlow in January 2017 when they noticed a number of individuals leaving a property known to be linked to the supply of drugs.

One man who left the house ran off when approached by officers, they went into the property and carried out a search.

Inside, police found 25-year-old

The pair and the room were searched and officers found 96 wraps of crack cocaine and 24 wraps of heroin. Kelly also had £345 cash in his pocket.

A search of the house also uncovered mobile phones, scales and bags used to weigh and package drugs, more than £1,600 in cash and a CS gas canister.

Riley, of Hood Close, Croydon, admitted two counts of possessing a Class A drug with intent to supply and was jailed for two years and eight months, while Kelly, 25, from Camberwell, South London, was found guilty after a trial at Chelmsford Crown Court of two counts of possessing a Class A drug with intent to supply. He was jailed for three years and six months.

BRADLEY BOATENG

Jailed for 6 years

Police officers spotted 20-year-old Boateng leaving a house in The Briars, Harlow. He was stopped and searched and found to be in possession of a five-inch combat

They carried out a search of the house that Boateng had come from and found £430 cash, 24 wraps of heroin and various items of drug paraphernalia including scales and a grinder.

A warrant was also executed at Boateng's home in Fairview Close, Walthamstow, where officers found a further £300 in cash, six bags of cannabis and letters making references to gangs. Boateng was charged and pleaded guilty to possessing a Class B drug, possessing a knife in public place, possession of a Class A drug with intent to supply and breaching a Criminal Beha-viour Order. He was given a total of six years in prison and the court ordered the forfeiture of the cash, knife and drugs.

TEFF PINDI-CAMARA

Jailed for 3 years Acting on information, the West Operation Raptor team searched a house in The Dashes, Harlow on Sunday, June 25, 2017.

They found 19-year-old Jeff Pindi-Camara asleep on a sofa.

They searched him and found 42 wraps of crack and heroin in his boxer shorts. He was also found with cannabis and cash.

Pindi-Camara, of Blackshaw Road, London, was charged with two counts of possessing a Class A drug with intent to supply and possessing a Class B drug.

He admitted both charges at Chelmsford Crown Court and was jailed for three years. The court also ordered the forfeiture and destruction of the drugs and

RYAN FINDLAY

Jailed for 5 years and 9 months Findlay, 25, was a drug dealer from London who visited Harlow 14 times in just one month to ply his trade.

He was stopped by police officers in August 2017 in a car in School Lane, Harlow, which was suspected of being linked to drug dealing.

Officers approached the car and arrested Findlay. He was taken into custody, where he was found to have 33 rocks of crack cocaine and heroin.

A search of Findlay's home in Isledon Road, Holloway, found cannabis, money and various drug paraphernalia.

He was charged with two counts of possessing a Class A drug with intent to supply and a further charge of possessing cannabis.

Findlay pleaded guilty to the charges at Chelmsford Crown Court and was jailed for five years and nine months

Opportunity is not to be squandered

THE new jobs created by the Enterprise Zone and the arrival of Public Health England are welcome indeed.

But it is the local economies of towns such as Epping, Bishops Stortford, Hertford, Sawbridgeworth and beyond that will benefit if, as is likely, the professional and highlyskilled employees they will attract choose to make these towns their home.

Their high earnings will be spent in the cafes and shops and on services in their home towns at the evenings and weekends.

Harlow has worked hard to create these jobs. It must work equally hard to improve the cultural, night time and weekend offer so that the town becomes an equally desirable place to live as well as work, a comparable experience to the market town or city life available in the commutable area.

This includes exploiting its incredible sculpture collection, supporting the Playhouse, encouraging independent restaurants and cafes (whilst curbing the growth of fast-food outlets) and perhaps most importantly recognising and extolling the qualities of the physical fabric – the houses, hatches and community buildings, the cycle tracks, landscape and public art which make up the Harlow experience. Then, as Harlow grows on its outskirts, it does so around a strong, vibrant core.

Led by our council and by our cultural, religious and business leaders, we must reimagine all of life, not only a 9-5 job, in this historic new town. To not do so will be to squander a once in a generation opportunity. Chris Snow

No longer proper policina service

DO we have enough police officers in Harlow?

I am told that we currently have forty-seven full-time police officers in our local policing team which is directly controlled by our local commander.

That is not sufficient enough to deliver local policing services to our communities.

Why not? Well 47 is estimated to be 17 officers light based on the figures given to me.

Will Harlow get those extra police officers? I suspect not given the fluid nature of recruitment, retirement, and promotion within the service.

Add to that the number of officers just leaving the service in disgust and frustration because of the austerity cuts and you can start to understand how this mendacious government has engendered a feeling of low morale and ambivalence in this most vital public service.

In short, the residents will pay even more this year for fewer policing services in their communities.

I have been, and indeed continue to be, supportive of the local police service and in fact actively supported the introduction of local neighbourhood policing in my area.

Indeed the local residents group that I started over 25 years ago encouraged police officers to attend its meetings.

It worked particularly well in my area because with a demographic of elderly and retired residents' overt neighbourhood policing was and still is essential. Unfortunately now what they get is "covert policing" whatever that actually means.

Policing in general and neighbourhood policing in particular is important for a sustainable and cohesive society in this country but sadly the residents are not receiving a proper policing service at the moment due to the actions of this current government.

Further, the decision to cut legal aid, close our local courts, reduce the number of prison officers and privatise part of the probation service iust adds to my conclusion that the justice system is in perpetual meltdown.

If it wasn't so serious, it would be laughable. Gary Roberts Carters Mead, Harlow

Faith in human nature restored

I WOULD like to express my opinion on the case of John Jones, the gentleman who had his home taken away by Essex County Council.

After I was targeted with abuse online via members of spotted Harlow, for defending bipolar sufferers and mental health I had lost my faith in human nature and in people in this town.

Then I heard that local kind, generous lady: Charlie Ellis, had offered homeless John Jones a sofa in her home for him to stay on. Local residents gave him food, money and blankets and a kind lady looked after his dogs. Charlie and some other kind locals were targeted on Facebook with hate mail, regarding their help towards John and his situation.

What is wrong with some people? Why would people do that to someone being generous and kind to somebody in need?

All I can say is well done Charlie Ellis and all the others, who defended and helped John.

Nobody should be homeless, and as for the people who sent hate online abuse, it shows a lack of empathy for human kind and it makes good people shine brighter.

Well done to all the good, kind people, who helped and signed the petition to get John his home back.

Good luck to John in his new plot of land, which was kindly donated by local company K.P Property Development.

£29 to belong to EU is a bargain

I GOT something through in the post the other day telling me how much tax and national insurance I paid in the last tax year.
On the back there was a breakdown of how much of the money I paid went on various concerns, for example, welfare, pensions, defence etc.

Of the just over £4,000 I paid from my modest salary (I'm a journalist), £29 went on Britain's membership of the EU, £29 - that's all.

It was the smallest amount listed in that breakdown of payments, almost £200 less than the £224 I paid towards the interest (just the interest!) on our national deht.

So for all those who were taken in by stories about the supposedly eye-watering amounts Britain was paying into the EU, it wasn't really that much after all.

£29 – I've spent more than that in the supermarket.

Or, to put it another way, £29 divided by 365 days equals a daily cost of less than 8p.

Quite a bargain for all the benefits that EU membership brings us, and nothing compared to the cost we will all have to pay for leaving the EU. Stephen Wilkinson

POINTS OF VIEW

DEAR Harlow residents, This week, I thought I'd update you on what I've been doing to get rid of hospital parking charges. Since 2014, I have been campaigning hard to scrap parking fees at NHS hospitals in England. These parking charges are the bane of people's lives. No one goes to hospital out of choice, they go because they must. We simply cannot say that the NHS is free at the point of access if drivers are charged to attend appointments, visit relatives or go to work.

The Government introduced guidance in 2014, suggesting the introduction of concessionary rates for blue badge holders, staff working unsociable shifts and long-term patients. Since then, however, 47 per cent of hospitals have increased hourly parking charges and almost half of hospitals offer no concessions for disabled drivers. According to Macmillan, nearly 60 per cent of hospitals in England are still charging cancer patients to park.

I decided it was time to question the Government on this - their guidance clearly isn't working. On February 1, I urged the Government to scrap hospital car parking charges during a three-hour debate on the issue, backed by MPs from across the House. My campaign was also supported by major national charities like CLIC Sargent, Headway and Bliss and two organisations representing motorists; the RAC and FairFuelUK.

Given the incredible support the campaign received, I was disappointed that no commitment was made to scrap hospital car parking charges. I will continue my campaign to bring an end to these parking fees and the social injustice that they create.

Keep an eye out for my campaign on Facebook and Twitter – and ask your friends outside of Harlow to contact their local MP so we can bring an end to this stealth tax on drivers, once and for all.

Best wishes, Robert

TALKING POIN

Getting to grips with the online tormentors THE BIG QUESTION:

There is no specific law in the UK that makes cyberbullying illegal, does this need to be addressed?

Eugenie Harvey

LIKE most people, I can remember feeling intimidated and occasionally bullied by older, tougher, seemingly cooler kids when I was at school. I was an easy target – 'the fat kid'. Thankfully, my school took the problem seriously. It also nurtured our skills to build self-esteem, so I came out of it relatively unscathed. But I still remember the relief of getting home from school and feeling "safe" from my tormentors.

Today, the situation is pretty much reversed for our children - bullying is a hot topic in schools and from the earliest age teachers are working with children to stamp it out.

Our seven-year-old is very clear that his school, Churchgate Primary, has a zero tolerance of bullying. But for our older child, the pressure often begins when she leaves school and enters the social media world -where sexting, cyber bullying, intimidation, exclusion, online sexual abuse are rife.

And like pretty much every other teenager, she expects her time in this world to have no adult interference or supervision.

We don't allow our kids to walk around the streets unprotected. Then why do we let them roam around the world of social media without protection?

At a conference in London last year, school leaders were warned by mental health experts that time spent messaging friends on Snapchat and Instagram can be just as dangerously addictive for teenagers as drugs and alcohol, and should be treated as such.

Is it any coincidence, then, that our young people are experiencing sky rocketing levels of depression and anxiety? Some are being treated for technology addiction.

In 2008 Gordon Brown, asked the child psychologist Professor Tanya Byron to investigate the impact the internet and video games were having on children.

Her report made 38 recommendations for making the online world safe for children, including a call for voluntary regulation of websites.

If you or someone you know has been affected by cyberbullying, valuable advice can be found online or in serious cases you should contact the police

A decade later, the Conservative government's internet safety strategy is only now in the process of developing a code of practice for social networks and fewer than half of Byron's recommendations have been fully implemented. Meanwhile, the online world has moved on: Instagram, Snapchat, WhatsApp and video conferencing apps did not exist a decade ago; today 83% of 12 to 15-year-olds have a smartphone, and half of all children have a social media profile by age 12, according to Ofcom.

This government says it wants the UK to be the safest place for children to go online, and yet it's not able to keep pace with the developments in the industry.

The time has passed for the industry to monitor

The government must make social media websites stick to a mandatory code of practice and give an independent regulator the power to fine those that break the rules.

It is the only way to provide our children and young people with the protection they need and deserve.

It is the recommendation of the NSPCC and it's difficult to think there is a parent that would disagree.

INDEPENDENT

Jon Clempner

CYBERBULLYING and online harassment is undoubtedly a problem, for young people, in schools, in the workplace and in public life.

Cyberbullying of young people can have a devastating effect, impacting their education, mental health, and in extreme circumstances leading to taking their own life.

In public life, campaigners and elected representatives, particularly women, are subject to online harassment and threats of physical violence and rape for simply expressing a point: Is current UK law adequate to deal with these or should specific legislation be enacted?

There is a range of current law that addresses this area from the Protection from Harassment Act 1997 and the Public Order Act 1996, to legislation covering electronic communications specifically, such as the Communications Act 2003.

With the exception of some specific issues related to Child Sexual Exploitation (such as online grooming), which do need addressing, the issue is not the lack of suitable legislation, it is the willingness of internet providers, public bodies, investigators and prosecutors to take the issue seriously, investigate allegations, and take the necessary action.
There needs to be a joined up, properly funded, and broad strategy to address

cyberbullying.
This needs to cover education and public awareness campaigns, including specific training for police, teachers and youth workers, supporting organisations such as Bullying UK and the National Bullying Helpline, adequate mental health support and resources for young people who are victims, and resources in schools.

In short, the law, while not perfect, is not the problem.

Our attitude, and willingness to tackle cyberbullying and online harassment, is.

YOUR CHARITY NEWS

Bears set for busy year after outlining big plans for 2018

TO enable it to continue its voluntary life-saving work, supporting the ambulance service to deliver enhanced pre-hospital care to patients across Essex, Bears has additional key focuses.

Over the next year to 18 months, the, the Essex emergency medical charity is determined to grow, enabling it to provide more pre-hospital care to the people of Essex.

Bears wants to increase the number of autonomous responding doctors and paramedics, increase the number of shifts that the Enhanced Care Car covers and increase the training opportunities for their volunteer medics.

Along with charity growth, comes the inevitable rise in expenditure to the charity.

Due to the fact that the charity does not receive any statutory funding and therefore relies solely upon the kind generosity of public donations, in 2018 it will be focusing on increasing its profile and visibility throughout the county.

This year will see the

This year will see the introduction of a project to source and recruit volunteers and supporters, who are willing to support Bears' community awareness work and or organise supporterled fundraising activities and events.

Paul Gates, chairman and critical care paramedic, Kelly Gooby and Dr Ian Gibson MBE

Ultimately the charity aims to create fundraising groups across the county, which will volunteer either individually or collaboratively, to raise funds to and help save lives. If you are interested in knowing more about volunteering for Bears, the charity would love you to make contact. To accommodate its anticipated growth, the charity has the immediate need to source and secure its first administration headquarters.

Aside space to carry out from the day-to-day administration and operational work, it also requires premises to do training, store equipment and be a base for both its Enhanced Care Car and Community Awareness Vehicle

If you are an individual or a local business and feel that you may be in a position to be able to offer support to the charity, by way of funding a base or able to allocate some space at a minimal cost, the charity would like to hear from you.

If you are a club or organisation and wish to know more about the charity's voluntary life-saving work, it can arrange for one of its doctors or paramedics to give a talk to your members, outlining how and at what stage Bears are activated and ultimately the level of care that the charity provides.

You would be barking mad to miss dog-friendly fundraiser

PUPPY love is in the air at St Clare Hospice as the charity prepares for its annual Winter Walkies event.

The 5km dog walking fundraiser will be taking place at the Hastingwoodbased hospice this Sunday February 25300 walkers and their furry friends are expected to support the event.

St Clare Hospice's events fundraiser, Emma Broadbent, is organising the event and said: "This year marks the 12th time the hospice has hosted the event and it is as popular as "The 2017 walk saw a record-breaking 350 owners and their dogs take part, and we are hoping even more people register for 2018."

Emma continued: "Anyone is welcome to join us on this rural route across the beautiful Essex countryside – whether you are a dog owner or not.

"Just remember your wellies as it is likely there will be plenty of muddy feet and paws.

"It is such a great event, you'd be barking mad to miss it"

Registration costs £10 for adults and £5 for children, which includes a free soup, dog rosette and certificates for children.

Walkers can also sign up on the day.

Be aware that the route is not suitable for pushchairs or wheelchairs.

This year's event is kindly sponsored by Epping-based vets, Forest Veterinary Centre.

Stunning Beauty and the Beast brings the house down

ST MARK'S West Essex Catholic School's annual musical production played to packed houses last week as children and adults enjoyed splendid performances of Beauty and the Beast over a two night run. In addition, 250 primary school children from five local schools enjoyed a performance especially for them.

Produced and directed by Head of Drama, Rachel Chisnall, the production was engaging and full of fun.

Emma Knudsen was perfect in the role of Belle, James Heinz a suitably fierce, yet sensitive, Beast and both were well supported by strong performances from the other principal players.

The musical accompaniment, performed by staff and pupil musicians under the direction of Sarah Kinsella, brought to life Alan Menken's beautiful score and the school hall was transformed by a stunning set created by Art Technician Sharon Carroll, who also made some very imaginative costumes.

With a cast of 52 across all age groups, who had rehearsed after school and at weekends, the production gave actors, singers, dancers and musicians a special opportunity to showcase their many talents.

Rachel Chisnall said: "The extremely enthusiastic response from visiting primary school pupils and the paying audience exceeded all my expectations and I am incredibly proud of all those who were involved in the production."

'We help people to leave a legacy for their loved ones'

IN its 125th year of trading it still has traditional service and values, but it also has some very modern methods.

Over the past three years the Daniel Robinson & Sons firm has invested in the development of new computer software which enables it to collect online donations via its website; this complements its continued collection of cash and cheque donations.

Each year the number of donations grows, the online donation option helps because it's quick and easy to do.

Unlike national online donation sites, Robinson &

Sons donesn't charge donors for using this service and there is only a minimal charge by the external card processing agency.

There are huge benefits to collecting the donations online, where the beneficiary organisation is a registered charity.

Its software automatically produces a declaration for gift aid for the donor to complete, as long as they are a UK taxpayer.

Gift Aid adds a further 25 per cent of the value of your donation to the amount that the charity receives.

This increases every £1 to £1.25 and every £100 to £125, quite a substantial

In total over the past year, the firm has collected donations for 299 different charities and organisations, processed 9,864 donations in total and collected and forwarded a staggering £428,883.89 on behalf of families.

Overall, an amazing £31,601 was raised in gift aid – £29,816 of this was collected via the software.

It is particularly good news that the charity that benefited the most was the local Harlow hospice, St Clare's

PAST TIMES

Duran Duran were at the heart of the New Romantic music scene 40 years ago. MARION McMULLEN showcases the music stars who gave their fans a licence to frill

26

HAT did Princess Diana, the New Romantics and the Paris designers have in common? The answer is a little bit of lace.

Princess Diana often sported a chic frill at her neck during the early 1980s, while the New Romantics bands and their followers opted for lace jabots, mufflers and ruffles. The Paris fashion designers of the period also used lace with outrageous extravagance in their evening gowns.

Duran Duran celebrate their 40th anniversary this year and Simon Le Bon, John Taylor, Andy Taylor, Roger Taylor and Nick Rhodes captured the look of the era when they started.

The Birmingham group enjoyed success with hits such as Rio, Save A Prayer and Girls On Film and later opted for a more restrained look for their music videos.

Planet Earth became their first chart success in 1981 and the self-titled debut album came out later the same year.

Within two years, the group were being mobbed by fans as they arrived at Heathrow Airport and they were awarded a star on the Hollywood Walk Of Fame – next to John Lennon's.

The New Romantics decade gave people the chance to dress up and release their inner dandy by mixing brocade, damask or chintz liberally mixed with lace.

Simon Le Bon later said: "I submitted to hedonism".

Adam And The Ants went one step further in the fashion stakes by adding a pirate look matched with native American-style warpaint.

Adam even wanted to bring out at make-up line for men at one point. He said: "To me, style is consistency."

The group had their first number one hit in 1981 with Stand And Deliver – with the opening lines reflecting the growing importance of the link between fashion and music by declaring: "I'm the dandy highwayman who you're too scared to mention/I spend my cash on

Fine and dandy

looking flash and grabbing your attention."

It was a creed that the 80s generation agreed with and generation agreed with and Adam And The Ants spent weeks in the UK charts.

Spandau Ballet with brothers Gary and Martin Kemp, John Kemble, Steve Norman and singer Tony Hadley began the 1980s with To Cut A Long Story Short and enjoyed success over the decade with songs such as Chant No 1 (I Don't Need This Pressure On), True, Gold and Through The Barricades, Their New Romantic wardrobe included everything from embroidered waistcoats and cummerbunds to pearl necklaces and cravats.

One of the looks even featured knickerbocker-type trousers matched with white socks.

Boy George and Culture Club added to the fashion scene when they appeared in 1982 with Do You Really Want To Hurt Me, George shocking many with his coloured make-up and ribbons in his hair. He later said: "To me, I think of the 80s as being this glorious decade where I discovered who I was and discovered all these amazing things... punk rock, electro music, fashion, all of that."

Japan, fronted by the distinctivelooking David Sylvian, were around at the start of the decade and championed an androgynous look.

Welsh-born singer Steve Strange, who fronted Visage, brought out Fade To Grey in 1980 and was an influential figure in the New Romantics movement, appearing in the music video for David Bowie's hit Ashes To Ashes.

He passed away in 2015 at the age of 55 and many of the singer's New Romantic contemporaries attended his funeral. Spandau Ballet dedicated their concert at the Sanremo Music Festival to him on the day of the funeral.

Ultravox experimented with various fashion styles throughout the 1980s with singer Midge Ure sporting a black leather look to perform Vienna on Top Of The Pops in 1981.

Visage frontman

Stevé Strange in 1982

Music fans happily replicated the fashion choices of their favourite bands and the new looks flourished as part of the club scene.

Newspapers and magazines all gave tips on how to achieve the New Romantic look and how to find bargains at market stalls and secondhand shops.

Colour, make-up and lashings of lace all helped to make the flouncy-cuffed fashion popular among young fans making them stand out from the crowd. It was a chance to go over the top and be extravagant as you danced the night away.

As Duran Duran singer Simon Le Bon once said: "I feel sorry for the 90s because it was never able to be anything much more than the hangover to the party that was the 80s"

KEEPING IT REAL

FRESH FROM THE SUCCESS OF A TOP 10 ALBUM, ROCK BAND LOWER THAN ATLANTIS PLAY ESSEX IN APRIL. BASSIST DECLAN HART TELLS DARRYL WEBBER HOW THEY REGAINED CONTROL OF WHAT THEY DO

t's been a while since Lower Than Atlantis did a full tour of the UK but they're making up for lost time with 22 dates across the country this spring including a gig at Chinnerys, Southend in April.

The Watford four-piece are still on a high after their latest album, Safe In Sound, hit the top 10 last year and playing an arena tour with Enter Shikari. But they're also looking forward to getting back to their roots according to bassist Declan Hart.

"We're going to places we haven't been to in five or six years, and some places we've never been to before, so we're all excited about that. Our last headline tour was just seven or eight shows so this is much bigger."
More than 10 years into their career, the band have plenty of material to draw on for their live show. Will they be concentrating on more recent stuff for the gigs?

"It'll be songs from across all the albums," says Dec. 'There'll be 19-20 songs in the set. We've been saying it'll be a greatest hits set without any hits! We haven't started rehearsing yet but it'll be a good mix of everything we've done."

They might not have a string of hit singles to their name but Lower Than Atlantis are a very successful band and they must be chuffed with the reaction that Safe In Sound got on release last summer. Did they expect it to go top 10? "If you try to get a top 10

you're probably doing something wrong," says Dec.
"No one knows for sure what makes a record good. You just try to write the best songs you

Dec says singer/guitarist Mike Duce tends to come up with a lot of the songs but it's not always the case. Anyone can come up with a riff or idea that may lead to something. Once they've got seven or eight demos they're happy with, then the band start thinking about how they can work them up and how an album might come together. Given the confident songwriting of Safe In Sound, it's a surprise to find that making the album was far from a smooth process.

"Safe In Sound was hard," says Dec. "We got to the stage where we thought if this doesn't work, then we'll sack it all off. We put too much pressure on ourselves. In the end we realised we just have to do our own thing and not worry about anything else. I think every band breaks up and gets back together all the time. It's what happens when the pressure is on and tensions run high.

It may have been a bumpy ride but it's certainly been worth it and Dec says it's hardened the band's resolve to do things their way and "The band always had a DIY/ punk ethos but we did start to lose it five or six years ago when we signed to Island and started doing things we didn't really like and we got dropped. Now we're back in control of what we do. We have our own studio where we can work on our songs without any outside pressure.

So Lower Than Atlantis are in a good place in 2017? "We're definitely in a good place now," says Dec. "I think we're in the best place we've been for a while. Things have improved a lot, we're all a lot happier, things are a lot smoother now. We make it as real as possible. People can tell when what you do is contrived. We just focus on doing the best we can."

Mimi Spencer and Sam Rice, authors of The Midlife Kitchen, tell ELLA WALKER their thoughts on cooking, eating and living well as the years tick by

HE key to really eating well, and not forcing yourself to eat sad salad after sad salad – particularly when you hit the mid-life stage – is to focus on taste and flavour.

Well, this is what cookbook authors Mimi Spencer, 50, and Sam Rice, 48, believe: "Just because something is healthy, you don't have to eat it – we'd rather get our greens fix from a nice watercress soup than a wheatgrass shot."

The food writer friends first met at the school gates and are now celebrating the paperback version of their recipe collection, The Midlife Cookbook, which dishes up recipes big on taste as well as nutrition, targeted for those facing middle-age. Here, they talk us through their inspirations and approach.

■ What nudged you to tackle the middle chunk of human life in cookbook form?

WHEN you hit midlife, it is often a time for reflection on where you are and what you still want to do with your life. We both came to realise the limiting factor for most people as they get older is their health. If you look after yourself, you can still look forward to a good, long healthspan (we prefer this term to lifespan), which is the number of fit, functional years ahead. So where better to start than with food?

■ What should people be most aware of nutrition-wise during this period of their life?

AS we age, there are two key things that happen relating to food: First, we need fewer calories overall as our metabolism slows, and secondly, we become less efficient at digesting the food we do eat. In practical terms, we need to eat nutrientdense foods in order to get adequate nutrition from fewer calories. Foods that fit the bill include plenty of colourful fruit and veg, eggs, full-fat yogurt, lean (mainly non-meat) protein and nuts and seeds. It's not rocket science, but the trick is to get these ingredients onto your fork in the tastiest way possible.

■ How can people best shake up their approach? SHIFT food and cooking up the SHIFT food and cooking up the priority list a little. We all have to eat, and so instead of seeing it as a time-consuming inconvenience, it's more helpful to view it as an important investment in ourselves. In practice, this means taking a bit of time to plan for the week ahead and get the ingredients in. The other important thing is to have a really good store-cupboard of basics.

■ How have your own tastes and attitudes to food changed with age?

IT might sound strange, but where we once craved a creamy pasta, we now prefer an interesting salad, not because we are 'trying to be good,' but because our palates have shifted and we are naturally drawn to more interesting flavours and textures. We've also found that investing a bit more time and thought in the food we prepare and eat has been a hugely positive thing.

What most concerns you about fad diets and the so-called 'clean-eating brigade'?

WHAT strikes us as bizarre with the recent wave of clean-eaters, is how what you eat is somehow linked to how good a human being you are – there is no moral link between diet and your personal character. Just because you have a pea protein smoothie for breakfast, it doesn't make you a better person. A lot of the language used is misleading and, in some cases, plain wrong. A green juice will not detox you, that is what your kidneys and liver are for.

■ Why, traditionally, do you think midlife has been relatively ignored?

PROBABLY because the media has, for the longest time, been fixated with youth and the idea that once you are older, you've had your moment in the sun. We'd say that's nonsense – and as this current wave of midlifers has shown, times have changed: Midlife is where the action is.

Don't have a midlife crisis over your diet

A FEW RULES TO HELP YOU PASS AS A WINE EXPERT

THE Wine Show presenters Amelia Singer and Joe Fattorini have partnered with luxury cruise line Celebrity Cruises to decant some of their wine wisdom on buying, serving and tasting.

Here are their tips to make your friends think you're a wine buff...

1. Get the temperature right CONTRARY to popular belief, you should always put red wines in the fridge a little bit before you serve them, but take white wines out a little bit before serving.

2. Break the rules NEVER ever think you can't have red wine with fish or white wine with meat. It's actually much more interesting to play around with the different flavours, such as condiments, spices, sauces and textures. You can either try to balance out your pairings by mixing a spicy wine with a spicy dish, or you can contrast.

3. A soft drink can be your flavour guide

IF you find Diet Coke is unpleasantly metallic, you are unlikely to like full-unlikely to like fullbodied wines because your palette is really sensitive. You'll tend to prefer lighter styles of red, like a light-bodied Cotes du Rhone.

4. Make room for a magnum

IF you are going to buy two bottles of wine for a party, stop! Buy a magnum. It's much more fun and the wine ages much more beautifully in it. So always buy magnums rather than two bottles.

5. Don't put wine in the freezer IF you need to quickly chill a wine, don't put it in the freezer. Put it in a little tub with water, ice and a bit of salt, and you just keep on swirling the bottle around. That will absolutely chill it down in just a few minutes.

6. Invest in stemware

GLASSES do make a difference. The different shapes enhance the different stylistic features in a wine. For instance, a very light, elegant Burgundy will be more bowl shaped. If you want to have a slightly oaked chardonnay, the glass will be more tulip shaped – they really help to enhance the perfume and evolution of the wine as well.

7. Tasting notes
IF you ever have to describe a wine to somebody and why you like it, there are three things that are really useful. Just tell them a couple of fruit aromas, and, really importantly, tell them how it feels how does it feel on the palette, is it big, small, rough, smooth?
And the final thing is, always say what you would do with it. Is it a party wine? Is it a food wine? Is it a celebration wine? Is it a show-off wine? Is it something just to watch the TV with on a Thursday night?

> 8. The bottle opener YOU want a worm thread, which is a coil rather than a spike with a blade around it, because those will split old and delicate corks open.

approx 12tbsp - store in the fridge): 6tbsp flaxseeds (another name for linseeds)

4tbsp sunflower seeds 2tbsp whole almonds (skin on)
For the filling:

250g ricotta cheese 150g thick Greek yogurt 400g can pumpkin puree (100% pumpkin)

60ml runny honey 2 large eggs 2tbsp lemon juice 2tsp ground cinnamon 1tbsp peeled and finely grated fresh root ginger To serve:

A handful of fresh raspberries More runny honey for drizzling

METHOD:

1. Preheat the oven to 180 degrees C/Gas Mark 4. Line a 20cm springform cake tin with greaseproof paper.

2. Using a coffee grinder or spice mill, pulse the Midlife LSA ingredients in batches until finely ground. 3. For the base, combine the LSA (or ground almonds if using), ground ginger, dates and coconut oil in a bowl. Mix well, using your fingers to create a crumb, ensuring the dates are evenly distributed. Press the mixture firmly into the bottom of the prepared tin, then brush it with egg white and bake for 10 minutes. Remove from the oven and leave to cool completely. 4. Reduce the temperature to 160 degrees C/Gas Mark 3. 5. To make the filling, put the ricotta cheese into a blender and whizz until completely smooth. Add the remaining filling ingredients and blend. 6. Pour the filling over the cooled base, then bake for 50 minutes until the cheesecake is cooked through but still has a bit of a wobble in the middle. Turn off the oven, leaving the cake inside to cool completely. Transfer to the fridge and chill for at least two hours to firm up 7. To serve, place on a dish and top with the raspberries. Drizzle with honey just before serving. For those with a sweeter tooth, serve with a little extra honey on the side

LADY BIRD (15) ★★★★★

Indie actress Greta Gerwig's magnificent directorial debut is a sublime coming-of-age comedy drama set in turn of the 21st-century Sacramento.

Although Lady Bird isn't strictly autobiographical, Gerwig draws on fond memories of her Californian hometown for a beautifully observed valentine to mother-daughter relationships and youthful exuberance, infused with unabashed warmth for her well drawn characters.

The writer-director has a sharp ear for the ebb and flow of pithy conversations and she has attracted a stellar cast led by Oscar nominees Saoirse Ronan (above) and Laurie Metcalf as the spunky title character and her hard-working mother, who generate friction every time they are in close proximity.

Lady Bird is a near perfect confluence of direction, writing and performance.

Being incredibly picky, there are a several instances when Ronan's accent falters and her melodic Irish lilt comes through loud and clear, which momentarily breaks the gently intoxicating spell cast by Gerwig's film. Damon Smith

THE GOLDEN VOYAGE OF SINBAD SPECIAL SCREENING: Regent Street Cinema, London, Sunday, February 25, 3pm

A fantasy classic gets a rare big screen outing this weekend at the historic Regent Street Cinema in the West End. The Golden Voyage Of Sinbad (1973) follows the mythical sea captain and his crew as they come across a strange flying creature carrying a golden tablet that leads them on an adventure involving an evil magician, strange and frightening creatures, and the fountain of youth. With monsters created by revered special effects master Ray Harryhausen, Golden Voyage is a shining example of fantasy movie-making before the digital age. Along with the screening there'll be a Q&A with one of the film's stars, Caroline Munro (also an iconic Bond girl) and Ray Harryhausen's daughter Vanessa, hosted by BAFTA award-winning filmmaker John Walsh. ■ For more details and bookings, go to www.regentstreetcinema.com

I, TONYA (15) $\star \star \star \star \star$

There was a time in the early 90s when Tonya Harding reached suffocating levels of fame that were not far behind Princess Diana and Michael Jackson in their intensity. Unfortunately for her that fame wasn't just about her exceptional ability as a figure skater but became about her rivalry with fellow US ice skater Nancy Kerrigan and the lengths she would go to in order to win. She was the American dream embodied and then twisted into a jealous, violent nightmare - or at least that's the way it was perceived at the time.

We first see Tonya as a threeyear-old dragged onto an ice rink by her fearsome, foulmouthed mum LaVona (Allison Janney) to demand that coach Diane Rawlinson (Julianne Nicholson) take her on. Taken aback by LaVona's brazen atti-tude and industrial-strength language, the coach protests that Tonya is too young for coaching but when she sees her skate she realises she is a

Years of relentless training hone Tonya's raw talent until she's an international competitor but she's not like the other composed, self-contained skaters in their expensive costumes. She's a brash, opinionated, self-confessed redneck who just doesn't fit very well into the prim and proper image of female figure skaters. Tonya (played as an adult by Margot Robbie) is bullied and physically abused by her mother from an early age and then by her jealous, controlling hus-band Jeff Gillooly (Sebastian Stan). For her, being hit, being bad-mouthed, being degraded are the norm and to survive she's become a forthright, uncompromising character who fights for what she wants. This makes her a divisive figure in the buttoned-down world of ice skating but she's in the mix for medals in the 1984 Winter Olympics at Lillehammer bringing her onto a collision course with Kerrigan. Robbie puts in an astonishing insecurities and personal performance as Tonya Harding embracing her fiercely determfrailties are nearer the surface. Jeff's bungling, self-delusional pal Shawn (Paul Walter Hauser) is worth a mention to because he's hilarious: A grown man still leaving at home but pretending to be a larly unflattering late 80s, early 90s fashion, Robbie gives it her all and totally convinces on spy master and terrorism expert. No wonder his and Jeff's plot to psychologically undermine Nancy Kerrigan Janney as one of the most bru-tal, self-centred characters goes so horribly wrong. One aspect of the film that troubled me a little on viewing and even more afterwards was the depiction of domestic violence. It is pretty much constant and, after the initial shock, you kind of get used to it. It's normalised which shows how it was for Tonya but still left me feeling uncomfortable. That may well be the point but it sat awkwardly with the black humour at times.

The film-makers may argue that it was all part of Tonya's life, the violence, the excitement, the competitiveness, the emotional highs and lows, but it made me feel a little queasy. Difficult viewing at times, but compelling. DW

CONVERTED BARN IN A HANDY SPOT

he unlikely combination of a barn conversion which is within walking distance of a mainline train station into London has just come on the market. The three-bedroom brick-built conversion offers a wealth of character and has an atmosphere which is hard to find elsewhere.

The location in Curteys, Old Harlow, is the ideal choice for anyone looking for a bit of peace and quiet yet isn't prepared to leave the rat race behind.

The area consists of six barns in the courtyard with a strong community feel. It's only a few minutes away from the town's shopping hub and ten minute's walk from Harlow Mill station.

Hidden behind the house is a large open green space, protected by The Marigolds Trust, meaning that you will always only be a few steps away from nature.

Perhaps the most impressive room in the house, the living room is a great open area with natural light coming through the double-height ceiling.

There are two good-sized bedrooms - one on the ground floor and the other located upstairs. Also upstairs is an additional third single bedroom benefiting from slanted ceilings.

The master bedroom has an en-suite bathroom while downstairs there is a shower room. There is adjoining a study area with plenty of potential.

area with plenty of potential.

The kitchen is well-equipped and and leads onto the garden patio. As with the rest of the house, the garden is spacious and very well-maintained. It has a garden shed and gate giving access to the courtyard.

The Barns is available for £650,000 and is being marketed by Howick & Brooker, in High Street, Harlow.

ctress, singer and TV presenter Denise Van Outen has sold her Home Counties farmhouse for £1.4 million after deciding to return to London.

Denise moved to the property with her then husband, Casualty star Lee Mead, to enjoy a more bucolic lifestyle. The pair later divorced, but remain friends and their marriage produced a daughter, Betsy.

Denise is reported to have moved to Hampstead where seven-year-old Betsy attends school

Denise is busy with her career and love life too. The former Big Breakfast star, who recently began dating oil broker Eddie Boxshall, appears regularly on ITV's Loose Women and does the voiceover for ITVBe's The Only Way is Essex.

Denise's farmhouse is in Kent and has just gone under offer through agent Jackson Stops, which says there was keen interest in the property.

The 17th-century home is in a picturesque setting in the village of Biddenden near the historic but small Kentish town of Cranbrook.

There is an Aga in the kitchen, a wood-burning stove in the lounge and Jackson Stops says the oak-beamed property was enlarged by Denise and now includes four bedrooms, three bathrooms, a separate lodge (used as a games room by Denise), a three-car oak-framed garage and several outbuildings as well as paddocks and woodland.

Big ideas for small spaces...

Feeling squeezed at home? Topology designers Athina Bluff and Amy Brandhorst share their seven top space-enhancing hacks with GABRIELLE FAGAN

nterior designers and awardwinning bloggers, Athina Bluff and Amy Brandhorst from Topology (topologyinteriors com), have joined forces with Habitat to help the nation maximise the space in their homes.

While there's nothing anyone can do about the bricks and mortar and dimensions of the property you live in, their seven home hacks could help you make the best of the space available, meaning rooms feel larger.

Read on for their space-enhancing secrets...

SHINE A LIGHT

"Ensure you have multiple light sources within a room to maximise light at night," says Athina.

You should aim to have around six light sources around the room, which will 'replace' natural daylight and allow light to flow through the space.

"Enhance the effect with mirrored surfaces, which will bounce light around. Those and metallics, which reflect warm light, will create a sense of more space.

BE FREE WITH FLOORING

"An easy trick for floors is to continue the hallway flooring into your small room. Creating a visually unbroken flow of space will make it appear as though it's one big area, and creates an illusion that the floor is expanding," points out space and emphasise the shape and (small) size of the room," says Amy. "If they're all the same colour, they'll blend into one and make the room appear bigger."

MAKE A GREAT REFLECTION

'Hang a mirror opposite a window. It's simple but extremely effective both in terms of cost and visual impact," suggests Amy.

"The mirror will reflect natural light and instantly brighten up your space, as well as making it appear larger. "If you're feeling creative, play around with different shapes or multiple mirrors to reflect as much light as possible. More light equals more sense of space.

MAKE THE MOST OF MULTI-FUNCTIONAL FURNITURE

"Opt for dual usage furniture that can be folded or expanded to suit your needs," says Athina. "If there's only two of you most evenings, opt for a folding table which, with an extension, turns into a four-person dining table for entertaining.

"Check out sofa bed options, which can easily turn a sitting room into bedroom for guests. Always consider storage in items like ottomans, pouffes, trunks, coffee tables. If there's a design that also hides clutter (the enemy of small spaces), choose

EMBRACE THE DARK SIDE

"This is one for the brave! Don't be afraid of going dark in small spaces," advises Athina.

"It may sound counter-intuitive, but dark shades - navy and grey - can actually disguise the perimeters of a room and blur boundaries which extend the space. Don't feel you can

YOUR HOME

Stain solutions

your lounge looking lovely - now the challenge is to keep it that way. But homes aren't just for show. they're for living in, which means spillages and scuffs will happen, and those beautiful, brandnew covers and carpets will eventually get grimy. After all, what's the point spending ages hunting down your dream sofa, if you can't drape yourself over it with a smooth glass of red after a busy week? And why bother indulg-ing in that extra fluffy rug if you're not going to sit on it for Friday night movie marathons?

Instead, there are things you can do to help tackle stains, marks and general filth build-up. Add these expert tips to your list.

RULE NUMBER ONE: ACT FAST

Ideally, you don't want to leave spillages to soak in – taking quick action is usually the best bet.

bet.
"Over a sofa's lifetime, we know that however hard we try, accidents happen and spillages can occur. Quick action can help minimise the risk of permanent stains. As soon as a spill occurs, take a kitchen roll or a clean towel to soak up as much of the excess spill as possible, and then consult your manufacturer's care guide to treat the rest of the spillage," advises Simon Nicholson, furniture buying director at sofa and carpet specialists ScS (scs.co.uk).

REMEMBER: BLOT DON'T RUB

Rubbing a spillage is never a good

From red wine and coffee to everyday dirt and grime, ABI JACKSON asks those in the know for their top tips idea - or you could end up 'spreading' the stain.

"The aim is to absorb the excess liquid, so remember you only ever blot a stain or spillage. Rubbing will only cause the stain to become further embedded in the fabric," explains Glen Ball, furniture technologist at Sofology (sofology.co.uk), who offers customers a five-year stain and scratch removal service with their 'sofashield' cover.

"Use a clean, dry cloth and always ensure that it's colour-fast. Cotton is best, but if in doubt, tissue paper will do the trick."

RAID THE KITCHEN CUPBOARDS

For a carpet/rug red wine or coffee spillage you're tackling yourself, some quick action with a homemade remedy might be useful.

We've all heard about chucking white wine on top of a red wine spillage... the jury's out on how effective this really is, but lots of people swear by using baking soda, or a baking soda paste (mix threeparts baking soda with one-part water). Apply to the

Baking soda is popular when trying to clear up a stain leave to dry and 'suck' up the offending spillage, then vacuum it up – hopefully lifting the stain in the process).

Another method is to mix a tablespoon of liquid dishwashing detergent with a tablespoon of white vinegar and two cups of warm water.

Then apply this to a clean cloth and repeatedly blot the stain, alternating with a separate dry cloth, until the stain lifts.

KNOW WHEN TO CALL IN THE PROFESSIONALS

"Everyday stains and spillages are fine to deal with yourself. Liquids like cordials and hot drinks can be removed with a little gentle persuasion," adds Glen. "Things like red wine and orange juice are better handled by the professionals once you have tried the 'blot, don't rub' approach."

The experts at ScS also advise

The experts at ScS also advise seeking help from a professional upholstery cleaning service or visiting an upholstery specialist, who may be able to offer a specialist cleaning kit for stubborn stains, or if the manufacturer's care guide recommends it.

This is especially important with

This is especially important with fabrics that are delicate or require specialist care and cleaning methods. And Simon adds: "However tempted you may be, never machine wash the [sofa] covers, even if they appear to be removable."

BE CAREFUL ABOUT THE PRODUCTS YOU USE

This might sound like a no-brainer, but make sure you check that any cleaning products you're going to try are definitely suitable for your sofa/fabrics. If in doubt, call the manufacturer's customer helpline, or pop into a specialist store to ask for advice.

The same applies when using substances that might seem completely harmless, like water. "Many people think using water to clean their carpets will mean fresh, bright floors, but over time, the repeated wet cleaning can wash out wool's natural waterproofing, resulting in the carpet acquiring a hard, crusty feel," says Peter Hollier, a cleaning expert with home appliance manufacturer Vorwerk, who sell a range of products designed to make light work of deep-cleaning your home (kobold. vorwerk.co.uk).

"Water can also cause the carpet fibres to shrink and stretch and the dye to bleed, leaving a less-than-luxurious finish. So, if you are going to clean your carpets with water, it's important you don't use too much and you dry the carpet quickly."

FACTOR IN SOME THOROUGH DEEP-CLEANS

To really keep carpets and rugs looking their best, the experts advise routine deep-cleans twice a year, or when required.

"Carpets collect a lot of dirt and dust over time, from children running in with their shoes on after they've been to the park, pets rolling on the floor, and not forgetting the countless times food or drink has been spilt.

Regularly vacuuming your carpets will result in the top layer of dust and grime being sucked out, however, you are leaving behind worn in dirt and allergens that only a good deep-clean can remove," says Peter.

"So, in addition to regular vacuuming, your carpets and rugs need a deep-clean to remove stubborn dirt that's become embedded in the fibres. We believe dry-cleaning is the best solution, with a powder-based cleaning agent that you sprinkle on the carpet, massage in and then vacuum away.

"It might take a little longer than other cleaning methods, but it will ensure you achieve the desired results without damaging your carpet in the process."

You can often run the vacuum over your sofa too, and the Sofology experts suggest: "For extra TLC, we recommend a weekly wipe down with a slightly damp cotton cloth and a quick vacuum with the soft tip brush attachment"

ROAD TEST: Volvo V60 Polestar Automatic by David Ward

t's exactly 20 years ago this year that Volvo caused quite a stir in the motorsport world by winning the British

Touring Car Championship with their 850 Estate – the first-ever and still only-ever estate car to win such a prestigious racing series.

At the time the Swedes were trying to prove that they could make exciting-to-drive, sporty family estate cars and move away from the public's then perception that they only made boring old cars for retired people.

The image change worked and although the 850's successors – the 850 T-SR and then the V70R – were subsequently dropped from dealer showrooms they are now back in the same frame again with the new Volvo V60 Polestar

V60 Polestar.
Using the technical know-how from their colleagues at Polestar Motorsport, this new up-market road-going performance estate car is taking on the well established sports-style estates from rivals like Audi, BMW and Mercedes-Benz.

It will set potential sportsminded buyers back the best part of £49,665 for the privilege which is far cry from the £23,747 for the current entry-level V60, known as a T4 Business Edition, but they are like chalk and cheese.

The big question is whether this fifty grand Volvo is worth it and will buyers get a true performance estate car at the end of the day?

The answer is yes because it delivers an impressive sports driving experience from its two-litre 367bhp supercharged and turbocharged engine and does so in a far more subtle and rewarding fashion than most of its rivals.

For starters it doesn't look that much different from the latest normal V60 range apart from some minor body styling changes (like an extended front-lip spoiler plus a new roof spoiler and diffuser) while at the back there are two distinctive sports exhaust pipes plus discreet small blue badges at the front and rear are all that reveal it's a Polestar model.

The previous six-cylinder, three-litre engine has been dropped in favour of a twin turbo two-litre and the Polestar backroom boys clearly know what they are doing when it comes to transforming an average looking medium-class estate car into a genuine sports performance estate.

Apart from now having a Haldex electro-hydraulic four-wheel-drive system on board they've added a new intercooler with high-tech ECU settings, created a far stiffer suspension setting too lowering the car by 3mm over the more conventional model amongst other mechanical tweaks.

To help stop the car - i will accelerate from 0 to 62mph in 4.5 seconds and has a limited top speed of 155mph _ they've installed bespoke 371mm Brembo front-disc brakes and it sits on 20-inch alloy wheels and Michelin Pilot Super Sport tyres

Naturally the ride is on the firm to hard side for such a sporty car which means it is a bit on the harsh side and drive with spirit around twisty 'B' roads and the like and you can feel every bump in the road, but it's road grip and overall road holding is outstandingly good, urging the driver to continue driving in such a manner.

On first starting it up, there's a wonderful raucous rumble from the twin exhaust pipes and keeping it om automatic driving mode – there are paddles on the steering wheel to change up and down manually if wanted – it has a fair turn of speed when demanded.

The eight-speed automatic gearbox is also impressive with such quick and responsive up and down gear changes that are smooth while the highly-tuned twin-turbo engine again is smooth and quite subtle in the way that it delivers its full 367bhp.

It really is an enjoyable fun and fast sports estate car to drive which delivers everything one would need but in such a subtle way and not in-your-face style as most of its rivals in this category.

Inside the cabin the dark charcoal leather-covered seats with neat but discreet blue-stitch trims, give exceptionally good all-round lumbar support and there's good head and leg room both front and rear and all-round vision is good.

Obviously there's plenty of standard kit on the car, such as reversing camera, parking sensors, sports console and shining alloy pedals for the driver, climate control, good infotainment system with a seven-inch screen that offers all the usual links to sat nav and other driving aids and is quite simple to use.

For audio buffs, there's an impressive Harman Kardon sound system as standard with 12 speakers and all the usual communication links too like Bluetooth.

As for body colours they are all quite subtle too with just a choice of four – black, blue, silver or white – with the test car in what Volvo calls Busting Blue which would be my own choice if buying.

Nice to see the now Chinese-owned Volvo team turning the clock back and bringing to the current market a radically updated sports saloon from the loveable old 850 series from way back when.

For anyone looking for this kind of upmarket sporty estate car, then the new V60 Polestar is well worth serious consideration.

ROAD TEST: Subaru XV 2.0i SE Lineartronic by Mike Torpey

sk any one of the growing throng of SUV drivers what made them switch from a hatchback, saloon or estate model and there's usually a combination of factors.

Styling apart, they always include the all-round aura of confidence gained from a raised driving position and, often topping the list, a feeling of safety.

When it comes to the latter, Japanese brand Subaru is well placed to attract buyers to its XV compact crossover model.

The latest XV, unveiled at the 2017 Geneva Motor Show, has been scooping safety accolades since its launch last summer – including the Grand Prix Award for achieving the highest score on record in Japan's New Car Assessment Programme crash safety evaluation tests.

Perhaps more appealing though is something called Eyesight, Subaru's optical advanced collision avoidance technology.

technology.

While systems from other manufacturers use various sensors like radar, microwave or camera, EyeSight operates via a pair of camera lenses to the left and right of the rear-view mirror that together create a stereoscopic image.

A core feature is Pre-Collision braking which reliably captures pedestrians in dark clothing in unlit areas – such as the countryside – and when needed initiates emergency braking.

Up to a speed of 28mph accidents can be completely avoided and the severity significantly reduced at higher speeds higher speeds.

That's not all though.
Subaru's rear vehicle detection system is also fitted as standard on the XV, offering blind spot detection, lane change assistance and help with reversing

help with reversing.
Otherwise, changes to the XV present a pretty much completely new vehicle from the one launched in 2012.

For one thing, it is built on the company's new global platform which has been engineered to be 70 per cent more rigid, in turn making the car's body and chassis rigidity and stronger. That becomes more apparent when you drive the SV, which is more engaging and agile as a result.

The latest models come with a newly-developed 2.0-litre direct injection Boxer petrol engine and all-wheel drive is standard on every car along with the marque's X-MODE system which boosts its off road ability.

We averaged 36.2 miles per gallon over 500 miles of mixed motoring that included a high percentage of urban travel.

That fuel return may not match the official 52.3mpg figure of the 2.0-litre diesel that's also up for grabs, but it wasn't too shabby for a car that spent most of its time with a full complement plus baggage aboard. And to that end the XV is

And to that end the XV is designed to both accommodate and please. The tested model's seats – in black and grey with attractive orange stitching – are comfortable, there's excellent rear passenger space and a centre rear passenger isn't compromised by a rigid perch.

Headroom is excellent all round, the dash is simple and well laid out with piano black and alloy inserts and there are plenty of stowage options varying from cup holders in the rear armrest to containers in all four doors. An elegant shape, smart alloy wheels and a pair of satin roof rails are icing on the cake for a vehicle that deserves to hold its own in the compact SUV arena. Prices are from £22,495.

FIRST DRIVE: Mitsubishi Eclipse Cross by Roy Woodcock

here might be a lot of negativity around car sales right now but launches of new and revamped vehicles show no signs of abating.

Now that might reflect the long lead-in time attached to producing new vehicles, but car company bosses remain bullish and none more so than Mitsubishi, which has just brought the Eclipse Cross to market.

Big things are expected of this compact SUV which, let's face it, will be up against some very good cars (think SEAT Ateca, Peugeot 3008 and Nissan Qashqai) in what is the most popular segment of the market.

It's a very stylish car for a start, which is always a major factor for user-choosers. After all, a little peer group envy never goes amiss. And despite those rival models I think the Eclipse Cross has more than a dash of sexy coupe about it; much like the Range Rover Evoque, in fact.

The second big plus, then, is it won't cost you anywhere near as much as the Evoque or, say, a BMW X4. And it's got far more useable space than another car I really like - the Toyota CH-R, launched last year.

QUALITY

Of the Japanese brands you could say Mitsubishi just quietly gets on with it; obviously very strong already in its 4x4 and pick-up offerings and content to concentrate on producing quality vehicles and let them do the talking for them. But what the Eclipse Cross does instantly is fill out the offer to the consumer.

This is a car which slots between the Mitsubishi ASX and the much larger Outlander, which means the company is competing in a far wider market. And it's marked out by a stylish, angular look that has it stand out from the crowd The tapered roofline, short

The tapered roofline, short overhangs and muscular front and rear fenders help create the sporty, coupe, feel. It's a handsome car viewed from all angles and the rear end is equally distinctive although I fear some will baulk at the split rear windscreen.

I understand this has

allowed the steep roof angle which adds to the car's attractiveness overall but I know some will question visibility out of the rear window (a la Honda Civic), although in practice I didn't find it a problem.

Given the fierce backlash against diesel engines, it's interesting to note that the only one available at launch is a turbocharged 1.5-litre, four-cylinder petrol engine, although a 2.2 diesel will be along later in the year.

On my drive I found this one of the biggest delights - the car drove incredibly smoothly and was supremely quiet. With very little, if any, wind noise intruding, the cabin was a lovely place to be on our travels.

Th Ecipse Cross can be ordered as a front-wheel drive or all-wheel drive vehicle and with either a manual or a CVT gearbox; the latter contributing to the 0 to 62mph sprint speed dipping below the 10 second mark. For those who think continuously variable transmission is the work of the devil because of noisiness and a tendency to be sluggish in getting the power down, I'm glad to report my experience was very positive.

On my evaluation route there was always enough power in hand to complete overtaking manoeuvres safely and the car went in to and around corners without any noticeable adverse body roll.

The Eclipse Cross is available in three trim levels - Eclipse Cross 2, Eclipse Cross 3 and Eclipse Cross 4 - and is comfortably specced. The entry-level version, for example, offers features such as a touch-pad controller, Smartphone Display Audio that is compatible with Apple CarPlay and Android Auto, rear view camera, DAB radio with six speakers, cruise control, climate control air conditioning, LED Daytime Running Lights, Bluetooth connectivity for hands-free calls, 16-inch alloy wheels, privacy glass and heated door mirrors.

The 3 builds on this by adding 18-inch alloy wheels, a heads-up display, heated front seats, front and rear parking sensors, dual-zone climate control, keyless entry and keyless start, electrically folding door mirrors, silver side sills and an electronic handbrake on automatic versions, while the top of the range 4 has leather plus electrically-adjustable driver's seat, electric opening panoramic roof, Rockford Fosgate Premium sound system with nine speakers and a suite of advanced driver assistance systems including LED headlamps, 360-degree parking camera, Blind Spot Warning, Rear

Cross Traffic Alert, Lane Change Assist and Adaptive Cruise Control (automatic only).

I have to say I found it slightly disappointing that there is no sat nav system anywhere in this, but Mitsubishi will argue that with all models being smart phone enabled, you can use the mapping services provided.

But while Google mapping or Apple maps (the two I use) have many advantages, including being up to date, it does rely on a data connection being available or downloading maps in advance.

Having said the car is spacious (and it is), with rear seats that slide to increase leg-room where needed, boot space is not classleading (448 litres with all seats in use). However, the rear seats do split and fold for those times when you need extra.

Overall, the Eclipse Cross is a welcome addition . . . good-looking with a real feel of quality inside, decent to drive, and very comfortable.

The Mitsubishi Eclipse Cross is priced from £21,275 to £29,750 on the road.

It's too little, too late for disjointed Harlow in defeat

A SCORING spurt in the final 25 minutes proved too late for Harlow as they lost 41-34 at home to Woodford in London and South East Division Two North East on Saturday.

Problems with player availability meant that Harlow had restrictions on team selection, and although all of the squad had previous first team experience, a number of them played out of position and this meant they took time to settle.

The first ten minutes was cut and thrust play but Woodford had the best of the territory and on 13 minutes took the lead with a converted try.

The pattern continued until the 26th minute when Harlow had a sequence of rucks, and from one of these flv-half Danny Smith made a break to score a try under the posts which he converted to level it at 7-7.

A defensive error allowed

Woodford to break away for an unconverted try and to go in at half-time with a 12-7 lead

Early into the second half

Smith slotted a good penalty close the touchline to close the gap to 12-10.

It looked like Harlow were back in the game, but within the space of ten minutes Woodford responded with three converted tries to establish a dominant lead of 33-10

Going into the final quarter Harlow countered with a driving maul, allowing prop Adam Seeley to go over for a try.

Then in the closing minutes the hosts countered with tries from Karl Rodell, Danny Smith and in the final minute one from full-back Ross Stalley.

This period of play showed that although Harlow are losing games, the margins are within

The first team have a week off before they are at home to undefeated league leaders Rochford.

Harlow still hold on to their fifth place in the league as a result of their strong performances in the first half of the season.

Dream debut for Hawks striker Foy

New loan signing nets twice to earn valuable draw

HARLOW Town boss Danny Chapman believes his side's three game unbeaten run will help instil a new found confidence amongst his players in their battle for survival in the Bostik League

Premier Division.

New signing Matt Foy made a sensational debut in Saturday's 2-2 draw at Worthing, scoring either side of half-time to salvaged a point for the Hawks.

Foy is a striker who came through the youth ranks at Cambridge United, before signing a professional three-year contract. He has had loan spells at St

Neots Town and most recently at Lowestoft Town.
The result left second from bottom Harlow two points above Burgess Hill Town.

"It was a very hig result for us on Saturday not just in terms of getting a point, but also for the mental state of the players," said Chapman. "Worthing have been going very well of late and going 1-0 down after 27 minutes wasn't the start we wanted.

"But the boys showed character and endeavour to get it back to 2-2 and in the second half we could have nicked it and got the win.
"For the boys recently the performances have deserved wins and not draws.

"The performances are there and the attitude is right. We will turn these draws into wins."

Chapman said Foy would prove an important asset to the side.

"We played against Matt a couple of times this year, he's a pro at Cambridge United and was on loan at Lowestoft. He's someone that we noticed and we've brought him in.

"He's made a great debut – he's very calm and collected and I believe he will be able to add goals alongside Alex Read to start win-

"We were the better side in the first half, but they were much the better in the second half and unfortunately our defending was wanting a bit.

"We know it will be a tough game, but need to approach it in the same manner we have approached the last three or four games with that work ethic and attitude we have had.

attitude we have had.
"If we can do that then we'll have a chance. We need to get a win and particularly at home.
"There are 12 games left and need to pick up more points.

"We just need to push ourselves a little bit more and turn these draws into wins.

"I'd like to think we have turned the corner but you can only look from one game to the next in the position we're in."

HAWKS' other new signing, centre back Jack Fowler from Grays Athletic had the misfortune of injuring his ankle in his first training session and is likely to face at least a couple of weeks on the sidelines.

Jade Huggins with Hoddesdon Boxing Academy head coach Sab Leo

Jade's joy as she's crowned Golden Girl

A PUPIL from St Marks Catholic School, Harlow has showed her fighting spirit after picking up a gold medal in a Swedish tournament.

Schoolgirl champion Jade Huggins, aged 14 and a member of Hoddesdon Boxing Academy took part in the Golden Girl Championships – one of the largest women's tournaments in Europe featuring fighters from 26 countries including Australia Mongolia and Russia.

Huggins was looking to add to her experience of boxing internationally, and she produced a flawless performance to out point French title holder Lina Gardarin (Team France).

Boxing in the Class C U42kg final, Huggins made the centre of the ring he own. She pumped the jab continually towards Gardarin, also landing straight back hands to which the French girl had no answer too.

The work rate shown by

The work rate snown by Huggins was simply overwhelming and at times the referee edged closer, looking to administer a standing eight count just to give Gardarin a breather.

"Jade has remained unbeaten in her short amateur career and the importance of participation in this event puts her in good stead for European selection for England in a few weeks," said Hoddesdon Boxing Academy head coach Sab Leo.

"She is now 5-0, national champion and Golden Girl Box Cup medalist and will only develop into a talented individual."
